For more than thirty years Nelson Lichtenstein has deployed his scholarship--on labor, politics, and social thought--to chart the history and prospects of a progressive America. A Contest of Ideas collects and updates many of Lichtenstein's most provocative and controversial essays and reviews.

"Nelson Lichtenstein assembles a series of representative essays to form a kind of intellectual and political biography of the labor movement, its intellectual supporters, and its attackers. . . . Lichtenstein's focus is firmly planted on the transformation of the labor movement from the late 1930s through the early 1970s--the decisive period during which the initial promise of the Congress of Industrial Organizations unions to transform the American political economy floundered and then failed."--Labor Studies Journal "A rich treasure trove of ideas and analyses on a number of critical topics. . . . Lichtenstein casts a net which captures capitalism and his subject and investigates the complex position of working people within its contradictory dynamics."--Labour/Le Travail
