From Asian Development Bank : ADB Cooperation with Civil Society Biennial Report 2011 and 2012 (ADB Cooperation with Civil Society Annual Reports) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised ADB Cooperation with Civil Society Biennial Report 2011 and 2012 (ADB Cooperation with Civil Society Annual Reports):

Civil society organizations, including nongovernment organizations (NGOs), are important stakeholders of the Asian Development Bank (ADB). This report is a compilation of ADB's engagement with civil society organizations, including NGOs, at the policy and strategy, country and regional programming, and project operations. ADB's NGO and Civil Society Center, ADB focal points throughout the Bank, and the institution as one entity, seek to strengthen cooperation with civil society in the understanding that engagement of all stakeholders can further increase and boost development effectiveness.
