Pradyumna P. Karan : The Non-Western World: Environment, Development and Human Rights before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Non-Western World: Environment, Development and Human Rights:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. InterestingBy Rachael BrownSo far, an interesting, decidedly non-Western view of the non-Western world.

Through a cross-cultural and multi-disciplinary approach, this introductory textbook focuses on critical issues of development, environment, and cultural conflicts facing most areas of the non-Western world. Areas covered include

China, Japan, Southeast Asia, the Indian subcontinent, the Middle East, and sub-Saharan Africa.

"This book provides a comprehensive, interdisciplinary look at the lands and peoples of the non-Western world. The level of detail it provides is great and the scope of the book is broad. It fills an important gap in the available materials on the non-Western world for college-level introductory coursework in the social sciences." - David Zurick, Eastern Kentucky University

About the Author Pradyumna P. Karan is Professor of Geography at the University of Kentucky, one of the leading departments in the country. He is the author of sixteen books on the geography and culture of Asian regions (Japan, Tibet, Nepal, India) and American regions.
